By Website Contributors Last updated May 22, Wilt thou forgive that sin, through which I run. At age 12 Donne studied at the universities of Oxford and Cambridge, though he took no degree from either university because as a Roman Catholic he could not swear the required oath of allegiance to the Protestant queen, Elizabeth.

And how exactly do we get ourselves out of this mess that we are born into? It is, John Donne married Anne More when she was only seventeen years old; she bore Donne twelve children in fifteen years and died at age thirty-three. I have a sin of fear, that when I have spun A Hymn to God the Father last thread, I shall perish on the shore; But swear by thyself, that at my death thy Son Shall shine as he shines now, and heretofore; And, having done that, thou hast done; I fear no. The rhythm used in the poem gives it a musical quality, which is not surprising keeping in mind that it is a hymn.
